Pleasant Memories Help to Make The Good Life

Before this department closes shop for the Summer, perhaps there will be tolerance for a honeymoon tale, particularly as local newlyweds are concerned and mention of them was made in this column several weeks ago.

The young lady wanted to know the name of a good place in New York for their first meal as a married couple. When it was said that the excellent restaurant where her parents had a similar experience continued to flourish she was insistent that a reservation should be made there. She was told that would not be so easy, as it was a highly popular hostelry and particularly so on a Saturday, which was the day on which June 19 occurred. Nevertheless, her father would do the best he could and here is the correspondence which ensued:

THE LETTER TO CAVANAGH'S

At Cavanagh's on October 19, 1909, which was nearly forty years ago, the undersigned and his new wife had their first meal as a married couple.

Now, it comes to pass that their youngest daughter wants to repeat the experience of her parents, on Saturday, June 19, 1948, her wedding day, when she plans to arrive at your place with her swain about 7:30 P. M.

When that happens I want you to be extraordinarily nice to the happy pair and to assign to them one of your tender-hearted Irishmen who still has a bit of romance lurking in his Hibernian soul. Their names at that time will be Mr. and Mrs. John A. Morgan.

You will have on the table a pretty thing or two, including a card wishing God-speed to Jack and Margaret, and whatever they order they should be told that they should have still more, for isn't this their first meal as man and wife and shouldn't it be something to remember?

And when the time comes for the bill, you will remind them that this is a night for love, not for money, and even if it breaks a New York waiter's heart to turn back a tip, that is something he must do on this eventful occasion.

To compensate him, and the head waiter whose cooperation I seek, a check of $25 is now enclosed, with the change to be divided as you may decide and with my best wishes.

I am sure you will be glad to help me sing this song of joy for the newlyweds and that you will agree to have the table reserved for them not later than 7:15 P. M.

For whom should they ask when they get there and what other suggestions can you make to have their first marital dinner a memorable episode?

And, of course, if you so desire, you may tell your advertising department the facts of the case, for they seem to demonstrate that old-time Cavanagh's is still a name to conjure with when good food and good manners and good spirit are called for and when a fine tradition is needed to translate properly that one touch of nature which makes the whole world kin.

CAVANAGH'S REPLY

The world generally accepts the sentimental attachments attendant upon such romantic episodes as the first dinner together of a man and his wife. However, some may wonder how much of a similar sentiment is attached to letters such as yours — and the thoughts they convey. Our appreciation of your note, with all its implications, is considerably greater than we can possibly express.

Suffice it to say, then, that every wish expressed by you shall be fulfilled, no less than if it were a command. The table will await Margaret and Jack at the appointed hour and its festive nature will be matched by the attendance of the most personable among our array of Hibernians. We shall also take the liberty of adding a few Cavanagh touches.

But one deviation must be permitted—and it is a liberty we insist upon. Won't you please allow us to participate in this memorable occasion by having Mr. and Mrs. John A. Morgan as our guests. We are honored and pleased, believe us, and we could not permit such mercenary and unromantic thoughts as the payment of a bill to intrude. Thus we return your check.

May we convey our congratulations to the parents while we await the arrival of the happy couple, whom we shall fete in a befitting manner.

There was a third letter, as inevitably a reply to Cavanagh's handsome acknowledgment was in order, but perhaps that was somewhat effusive for cold type and it need not be printed here. Those who want a complete file may have a copy on request.

All the prospective bride and groom were told was that the reservation was accepted, provided that they were there promptly at the appointed time, and no particular conversation was encouraged about the matter. It could have been, however, that the apple-cart might have been upset by the fact that Louis Sobel reported the arrangement in complete detail in his column in the New York Journal-American on the Wednesday preceding the eventful Saturday night. He said that he did not believe the young couple would read what he had written. Mr. Sobel, however, does not know Narberth or its alert people, for Mrs. Tracy, at Haverford and Iona Aves., did see what the columnist had written, but was prudent enough to mention it only to the chief culprit of the occasion. Hence it was that Mr. and Mrs. John A. Morgan walked into a surprise occasion that completely bewildered them and they partook of a menu that was definitely de luxe, served on a table that was grandly adorned and which enthroned the bride, to use her expression, as truly a queen for a day.

Hidden in the flowers was a microphone and every word that was exchanged between the newlyweds and their gracious hosts was recorded for a candid radio program, of which more will be heard later. Also an account of the affair will appear in 265 newspapers, according to the management, as Cavanagh's is one of New York's oldest restaurants (established in 1876) and they are solicitous for the approval of the discerning folks they seek to serve.

It was after 11 o'clock when the bride and groom left the place, thrilled beyond description by the adventure, and there is no doubt the happy memory will linger for all the days of their married life.

* * *

And when that other anniversary comes, the one on October 19, there will be another dinner at Cavanagh's, and those who want to come along are asked now to send in their names. That is going to be a party well worthwhile and there will be transportation and a plate for all the friends who will be so good as to help celebrate the occasion. And if you don't know the phone to call, the Editor does, and be assured the line is open to all who are disposed to go along.

12,000 at Fireworks Display Climaxing 'Fourth' Celebration

Hundreds Participate in Sports Events, Baby and Pet Shows; Baseball Game With Berwyn Highlights Afternoon Program

Residents of Narberth and surrounding communities turned out in full force Monday to watch one of the largest and best-organized Fourth of July celebrations ever held in the Borough.

Hundreds of children participated in the sports events, games and baby and pet shows which figured prominently in the day's activities. Starting at 9:45 A. M. and continuing until 2:30 P. M., the day's events were under the direction of Sterling M. Chain, assisted by Carlton Harkness, Mrs. Mabel Hunsicker, Richard Gillis, Samuel Barclay and William S. Howard.

Pony rides and pony cart rides, movies, a fish pond, and, later in the day, a Main Line League baseball game between Narberth and Berwyn were also a part of the celebration which was held on the Community Playground.

Booths selling all kinds of food-stuffs, soft drinks and miscellaneous articles were kept busy during the entire day by the huge crowd which was estimated at 3500 persons.

The Narberth Volunteer Medical Corps, on duty the whole day with three members, reported a busy time, treating two persons who were affected by the heat and 15 others for minor injuries such as cuts and scratches.

The borough's observance of the national holiday continued during the evening when an hour-long display of fireworks was attended by an estimated crowd of 12,000.

Spectators thrilled to the excellent rendition of "The Star-Spangled Banner," by Kathryn Westman, Narberth lyric soprano, which opened the fireworks display.

The display, under the direction of William S. Howard, featured rockets, pinwheels, a facsimile of Niagara Falls, barnyard fowl and animals, American Flags, and a brilliant finale which consisted of colored fireworks spelling out, "Good Night." Music was played over a loud speaker throughout the display.

The Medical Corps, which had eight members on duty for the fireworks, reported that one youngster, burned by a falling ember from one of the set pieces of the display, was taken to Bryn Mawr Hospital in the ambulance, treated for minor burns, and discharged.

Sudden Storm Uproots Trees

Reading Railroad Tracks Blocked for An Hour

A sudden and short-lived wind and rain storm swept through Lower Merion Township and Narberth Borough shortly after 4 P. M. Tuesday.

Six trees were uprooted, including one which fell across the Reading Railroad tracks at Rolling and River Rds., Penn Valley. Freight traffic was halted for more than an hour while railroad workmen cleared away the debris.

Other trees reported blocking township highways included one at Centennial Rd. near Mary Waters Ford Rd., Penn Valley; one at Mt. Pleasant Rd. near Spring Mill Rd., Villanova; the third on Black Rock Rd., near Dove Lake Rd., Gladwyne; and the other two on Monk Rd., about a mile south of River Rd., Gladwyne.

Township highway crews had the trees removed by 8 P. M.

Merion Boy, 14, Takes Own Life After Damaging Car in Accident

Benjamin Sawin, 14-year-old Merion school boy, shot and killed himself Wednesday morning shortly after figuring in a slight accident while driving his father's car without a license.

The only son of a Philadelphia banker, he was found lying with a bullet wound in his right temple in the den of his home in the Merion Manor Apartments, Idris Rd., Merion.

Rushed to Bryn Mawr Hospital by the Lower Merion police ambulance he died at 2:10 P. M., about five minutes after arrival.

Patrolmen Roland Barrow, Morris Alvany and Howard Miller and Detective Harry Gross, of the Lower Merion Township Police were dispatched to the scene of the shooting for investigation.

According to Lower Merion police, the boy's mother had asked him to bring the family car from the basement garage of the apartment building, as he had been allowed to drive the car that short distance.

The youth, however, apparently decided to go for a ride, but at Essex and Woodbine Aves., Narberth, collided with a car driven by Victor Grotta, of 9 W. Phil-Ellena St., Germantown. Both cars were traveling at approximately 20 miles an hour and the damage was slight.

In response to a radio call from Lower Merion police, Sergeant Charles F. Girvin, of Narberth police, went to the scene of the accident.

When he asked young Sawin for his license, the boy said that he did not have it with him and that he would have to go home for it. He locked the car, after taking a set of golf clubs that had been in the back seat, and Girvin drove him to his home.

On the way over he said to Girvin: "I hate to do this, my father has been so nice to me."

When they reached the apartment Girvin stopped outside to talk to Mrs. Sawin, who had been waiting for her son to return with the

Bryn Mawr Group Offers New Play of Race Problems

An enthusiastic audience greeted the premiere Wednesday of "A Family Story," a play-poem by Marjorie Low which is the second offering of the season of the Bryn Mawr College Summer Theater Players. Miss Low, who is a member of the company which is appearing during the summer months at Goodhart Hall on the Bryn Mawr campus, has written an imaginative, almost fantastic study of human relationships in an interracial school of the arts, which though frankly unsuited for the commercial theater, provides a strikingly fascinating evening for playgoers.

Played on a bare stage without props, "A Family Story" owes much of its power to the amazingly skillful lighting. Robert Wood Taite, a Swarthmore College student who directs the lighting, is always successful in creating an effective mood, and the drama of the lighting serves to carry the play at moments when either the script or the players or both seem to lag.

Two local youths do very capable jobs in the lead roles: Ted Breining, a Haverford High School graduate of some years ago, is wonderfully psychotic as Paul, the director of the school, while Grace Graselli, of Wayne, takes honors for the best individual performance of the evening with her dainty, lonely portrayal of the young girl who loves Paul.

Although at times he seems stiff, Dennis Lynch is generally very satisfactory as the intense young Negro who finds an escape in the school from the tensions of a prejudiced world, and Shelia Tatnall manages to keep her Philadelphia debutante background from inhibiting her performance of the cheap, painted white girl with whom the Negro caries on an illicit love affair. Joan Hunsicker is rather convincing as the wife of Paul, although the other minor roles are played without especial distinction.

Despite being too wordy in parts, Miss Low's play is quite good, and the presentation of it should improve for the Friday and Saturday evening performances as the cast acquires experience.

THINKING OUT LOUD

Copyright 1948 by CHARLES A. WRIGHT

What's in the Mail?

We don't know who put out the propaganda that "The postman always rings twice" because at our house he doesn't even get a chance to ring once. Just let there be the slightest sound, as he puts the first postcard into the box, and we race to the front door and almost knock the poor man over in the excitement.

✦ ✦ ✦

It is marvelous how that sound travels. We can be hard at work in our office on the second floor, with the door closed to keep out any distracting noise, but when the postman arrives on the front porch it is as though a huge gong rings in our consciousness. We bound from our chair, through the door, and down the stairway in nothing flat.

Our greatest competition comes from our son, who is longer-legged, and, of course, a few years younger. He also has the advantage of Greater Incentive, in that his mail is more likely to contain something interesting. But we have the benefit of our years of Clean Living, Regular Hours, and Long Training in racing to the front door for the mail.

Our deep interest in the mail began when an uncle sent us a letter containing a dollar. We've been racing to the mail box ever since, although we've rarely received any missive quite as exciting.

✦ ✦ ✦

At the age of 13 we sent off a dime to a service which guaranteed to get us a "Big Mail Free." It did. For months afterward we received mail from concerns all over the country, telling us how to get rich quick. All we had to do was send each a dime for its Wonderful Secret Formula or its Marvelous Method. We wonder how many concerns got rich quick from the dimes we saved out of our lunch money?

✦ ✦ ✦

After a while, however, we lost interest in mere money because Romance came into our life. It seems that one of our dimes bought us membership in a Sweetheart Club and we began receiving letters from Girls.

✦ ✦ ✦

Ah, those lovely girls in Houghton, Mich., and Calgary, Alta., Can., and in other spots hundreds of miles away! How we enjoyed walking with them and talking with them and holding their hands and hearing them say: "I love you!" particularly as it was all by correspondence and there were no rude encounters with other boys who would say: "Yah, yah, Charlie's got a girl!" The mailman didn't even have to walk up on our porch in those days. We met him half a block away.

✦ ✦ ✦

We wonder if the poor man was distressed when our correspondence suddenly seemed to fall off; when our mail no longer contained daintily scented missives on the 5 and 10's very best pink stationery? It was not that we had lost interest in girls. It was just that we had learned to play postoffice the home grown way.

✦ ✦ ✦

Why bother with letters when we could see The Girl every day in school; or be with her each evening as we roller-skated with her down the hill and then bought her a nickel's worth of candy at Schuenemann's? Of course, we exchanged little notes, but we didn't have to pay postage on those. That's how we managed to have a nickel left over to buy candy.

✦ ✦ ✦

Later it turned out that this had been only Kid Stuff, which naturally was followed by the One and Only Affair, which subsequently was discovered to have been Just An Infatuation. "My," we would say each year, "how silly we must have been last year." But then came the affair that was Really It, when it was torture to be separated from Her for even a minute, and when we would haunt the mail box whenever cruel fate forced her to be away.

✦ ✦ ✦

Well, we married the girl, which ended that, and so, to add sporting interest to our mail, we began sending Contributions to the Magazines. That is one sure way of getting a big mail, because the editors are pretty likely to return almost everything you send them. Some are more considerate than others; instead of returning your manuscripts promptly, they hold on to them a while, so that for a week or two you can go around dreaming that maybe your stuff has been accepted.

✦ ✦ ✦

And then there was the time that we entered a contest for a $500 prize offered by the Linotype Co. Nothing came and we were somewhat annoyed at getting so many circulars and stuff from other people. We almost tossed out the envelope with the Kenyon & Eckhardt return address until we suddenly realized that K & E was the advertising agency for the Linotype Co. We ripped open the envelope and after we read: "We take great pleasure in advising you" we could read no more. The Little Woman had to read the rest to us and tell us we had won the $500.

✦ ✦ ✦

Through the years there have been other rewarding letters: the news that we had won a new, big job; the news that one of the youngsters had been awarded a scholarship; the news that something good has happened to a friend of ours. These are the things that enliven the arrival of the mail; that make it seem like a gigantic lottery in which you probably won't win, but in which you always have a chance.

✦ ✦ ✦

We suspect that many of our neighbors feel the same way. Or is it by mere coincidence that so many doors open just as the mailman steps upon the porch!

✦ ✦ ✦

We look at what he brings and say: "Gosh, just more circulars and bills." But he knows we'll be waiting for him the next day just the same.

THIS WEEK IN HISTORY

The world's present industrial power was made possible by the inventions of Nikola Tesla born 94 years ago this week. Tesla landed in America 64 years ago, his head full of ideas for the transmission of electrical power. His invention of a motor operating on alternating current made possible the transmission of power over long distances . . . heretofore an impossibility! In 1893, 12 of Tesla's generators lighted 90,000 bulbs at the Chicago World's Fair. Soon the alternating power lines were stretching across the nation . . . Tesla had created a new power era for the world!

Orchestra, Stage Show Open On Steel Pier

Ray McKinley and his orchestra, the "Ideal Revue," a new stage feature starring Henny Youngman, and three full-length pictures will be the highlights of the new show to be presented on Steel Pier in Atlantic City during the week of July 11.

Drummer McKinley pilots one of the most popular bands in the country. Opening Sunday, July 11, all of the famed McKinley first-rank sidemen will be on hand to supply the kind of rhythms that have made and kept him a No. 1 headliner from coast to coast. Chief soloists are lovely Chris Adams and Teddy Norman, topped always by the inimitable Ray himself in constant drum and vocal solos.

Henny Youngman, outstanding comedy star of Broadway stage, screen and radio, is the chief luminary of the "Ideal Revue," which also opens Sunday, and remains through the week. The famed Youngman wit will be supplemented by numerous other all-star turns, among them Lew Fitzgibbons, master of the xylophone; Viola Layne, clever impersonator of stage and screen stars; the Forida Trio, comedy knockabout team, and the renowned Bohney Dancers, crack stepping line, who will be seen in a number of superb routines against colorfully staged backgrounds.

SPARE TIME GARDENER

By DOUGLAS EARL
HENRY A. DREER, INC.

Bugs, Bugs, Bugs. Did you ever see so many Bugs. Don't you remember the "gold old days" when we didn't have two bugs for every plant? I don't. I spent many a weary hour knocking Potato Bugs into a lard can filled with kerosene; you always had to pick the Rose Bugs (Chafers) out of cookies before you dared bring them in the h. ; and finding a worm in a freshly bitten apple was an all too frequent experience.

Sure we have Bugs, but we have effective insecticides to combat them. We also have sprayers and dusters that really work.

The Spare Time Gardener is inclined to be lazy, so he has Arsenate of Lead, Rotenone, Nicotine (Black Leaf 40), a liquid soap (C.P.O.) for a spreader and Bordeaux Mixture sitting on the shelf in the garage. There is also a small atomizing sprayer, a hand dust gun and a 2½-gallon compressed air-sprayer. But all these require work. Sprays have to be mixed and the sprayers cleaned after use, so there they set until the hour of dire need. In the meantime the combination dusts (End-o-Pest), which contain both an insecticide and a fungicide, in a self-contained dust gun, answer the bug killing problem. They're handy and you use them, otherwise you are inclined to "put it off" until Mananna.

However, the time does come when special sprays are needed. Generally Arsenate of Lead will get the leaf chewers. Always add an equal amount of Lime to Arsenates of Lead sprays to eliminate burning and do not use on tender foliage.

Rotenone will also get the chewers and should be used on crops that are intended for food in the near future.

Aphis (Plant Lice), thrips, red spider, and mites are persistent pests and can only be killed by contact sprays. That is, you "gotta hit 'em to kill 'em." Black Leaf 40 (Nicotine), Red Arrow (Rotenone), Pyrote (Pyrethrum and Rotenone) are all good. However, one spraying is almost useless i. a heavy infestation. Spray every other day until they are entirely cleaned up and examine carefully in a week to see that they stay clean.

Bordeaux Mixture will take care of most blights and mildews. Fermate a new fungicide is also very good. Spraying at regular intervals through the summer will prevent much damage.

There are a host of new insecticides and fungicides on the market and the Spare Time Gardener will be pleased to give specific information on them. Write the "Spare Time Gardener," P. O. Box 350, Ardmore, Pa.

TRAVEL and RESORTS

Atlantic City, the World's Playground

A cross-section of industrial activities and products of the nations of the world may be seen by visitors to the International Industrial Exposition, now in its first season on the Million Dollar Pier.

The interesting show includes approximately one hundred exhibits from 14 foreign countries and the United States. And although the exposition is basically a trade show, the exhibits are enjoyed by the general public, both adults and children.

For example, there is a miniature replica of the Holy Land - the provinces of Galilee, Judea and Samaria -containing some 1200 buildings and 740 figures. From Italy there are twelve exhibits showing such things as perfumes, pottery, glass blowing and other products of the nation. Rugs, metal work and handbags from North Africa; tea and silks from China; cigars and sugar from Cuba; automobiles from England, Italy and France (incidentally, all of which are for sale); and, an exhibit of the ancient Nipponese art of fingernail weaving are only a few of the many that are here to interest young and old alike.

The United States has contributed such things as the new Tucker car; a woolen mill manufacturing men's wear; a small plant that makes cosmetics; a child's crib that folds into a suitcase; soup, soap cakes and bread, and a long list of other products manufactured by our great industrial plants.

And to carry out the idea of the fair, there is a mid-way with slides and rides for the children; a theatre with movie size television screen; a nightly fashion show with weekly program changes; and the deep sea net haul in the pier's ocean stadium.

Club Members Place High in Contest

Lower Merionites again took top places as plug and fly casters held sway during the annual Fourth of July contest staged in Fairmount Park by the Middle Atlantic Association of Casting Clubs last Monday.

Against a strong cross wind, which was appreciated by the spectators though not by competitors in the casting events, Ernest Jenkins, of Narberth piled up a score of 90 out of a possible 100 to take first in dry fly accuracy and was backed up by his teammate Howell I. Dietrich, of Upper Darby who played second with 87.

Trap Shooters of the Lower Merion Rod and Gun Club will hold a prize shoot Sunday, July 11, at 1 P. M. on the grounds of the Upper Merion Rod and Gun Club just outside of Bird-in-Hand. Prizes will be articles of hunting and fishing equipment awarded on Lewis-class, report acting co-chairmen Earl F. Moore, of Narberth and John Munro, of Wilmington.

College Whirl

Dear Dottie,

Just heard that Edward Bernard, of Bala-Cynwyd, was one of ten members of the junior class at Amherst College who were tapped for Scarab, the senior honorary society, at the annual Senior Chapel ceremony at the Little Three college. Election to Scarab is based upon extra-curricular achievement and leadership and is the highest non-academic recognition a student at Amherst can receive. Ed graduated from Lower Merion in 1946, and was a member of the Student Council; the National Honor Society, the gym team, and the "Merionite" staff while he was there. At Amherst Ed joined Alpha Delta Phi Fraternity, served on the editorial board of the college newspaper—of which he will be chairman next year—and has been elected to Phi Beta Kappa.

Had a card from Dave Malickson who is at Langley Field, Virginia, taking six weeks of advanced ROTC courses. Dave is a member of the ROTC at Penn State, and is training for a reserve commission in the Air Force. Other future officers from State are taking their summer training at Fort Meade, Fort Monmouth, Fort Belvoir, or Aberdeen Proving Ground.

Saw Harry Ellsworth, Jr., the other day, and congratulated him on graduating from the University of Pennsylvania. Harry graduated from LM, and alternated his study of journalism and advertising at Penn with sevice in the European theater. He's already started working in a good position with the advertising department of a local corporation.

Three local boys came home for the summer from Brown University proudly displaying newly acquired pins showing that they have been initiated into Delta Tau Delta fraternity. All three of the boys, Earl Wagner, Jr., Richard L. Romoser, and David H. Michael, have completed their freshman year at Brown, and are studying for the degree of Bachelor of Arts. Dick Romoser, as you know, is a Haverford School alumnus, while Earl Wagner and Dave Michael are both graduates of the Hill School. Earl won his class numerals on the freshman swimming team at Brown this year, while Dave won his class numerals on both the freshman soccer and wrestling teams.

Had you heard that Isabel Graham was one of the 27 members of the sophomore class at Wilson College who were named to the semester honor list for the semester which just ended! The honor list is a recognition of high scholastic rank, and the college says that it "entitles a student to the privilege of assuming responsibility for her own class attendance"—in other words, unlimited cuts

Sonia Thomas was up in Ardmore shopping the other day, and tells me that she's counting the hours until August when she's going to escape Philadelphia's heat by going to Ocean City for the month. In the fall Sonia, who graduated from Lower Merion in 1947, will enter Stratford Junior College, in Danville, Virginia

Jane Clark was about to leave for Washington to visit the girl who will be her roommate at Sweet Briar next year when I talked to her. She tells me that Mary Ann Ziegler who added much to the Agnes Scott College reputation for beautiful girls, is transferring to Bucknell next year. car. During the conversation Girvin told her of the accident, mentioning that it had been slight and that young Swain had gone inside to get his driver's license.

Mrs. Sawin replied that he did not have a license and went into the apartment. A few minutes later she came out screaming that the boy had shot himself.

Girvin rushed in and found the boy lying on his face in the den. A .22 calibre Springfield single shot bolt action gun was lying on the floor beside him. The bullet had pierced his right temple. It was found lodged in the far wall about five feet from the floor.

Kneeling beside the boy was a maid, Grace Nedd, of 3620 Wharton St., Philadelphia.

The ambulance was called and took the boy to Bryn Mawr Hospital. He died five minutes after arrival and was pronounced dead by Resident Physician Dr. J. E. Strang.

Benjamin was a student in the second form at Haverford School. His father is a vice president in the banking department of the Provident Trust Co., Philadelphia, and a former banker in Rochester and Cleveland. He served as financial adviser to the chief of the Cleveland Army Ordnance District during the war.

EDITORIAL COMMENT:

THE KEYS ON THE ROAD TO PROGRESS

The Constitution and the Free Enterprise Foundation of New York has just published a book called "The Keys to Prosperity." This book was written by Wilford I. King, and he happens to be the economics professor emritus of New York University.

In the book, the author has started off with Adam Smith's "The World of Nations," which was written in 1776. He definitely points out that before Smith's book was written, there was no systematic treatise in economics, and he also makes it clear that despite explorations in the field of economics by thousands of inquiring minds, surprisingly few of the principles laid down by the Smith book have been overturned.

In his book Dr. King says that in the years since 1776, major advances have occurred in our understanding of our principles governing population, interest rates, the workings of monopoly, and cyclical movements in economic phenomena, and it seemed necessary to clear away a great tangle of misconceptions and fallacies under which economic truths have been buried so deeply that it has required a trained eye to detect them. Many keys are described in the King book—false keys to prosperity which merely open the way to paths leading nowhere; some which are veritable keys to Pandora's box, and then the 17 keys with which it is possible to unlock all the gates and allow the nation's motor caravan to move ahead along that smooth, sweeping turnpike . . . gently rising and uninterrupted by any sharp hills or declivities which constitutes the road to sustained prosperity.

Here are the 17 keys to prosperity as outlined in King's book:

1. Prevention of war—an end which cannot be attained without the establishment of a really effective world government.
2. Prevention of any undue population pressure upon the supply of material resources available to the nation.
3. Conservation of natural resources.
4. Maintenance of the quality of population.
5. Forcing the thriftless to insure themselves and their families against the untoward vicissitudes of life.
6. Preservation of freedom of movement from place to place within the nation; this includes the right to go to one's place of employment without molestation.
7. Guarantee by government of the right to acquire, hold, dispose of and bequeath private property.
8. Freedom of contract and guarantee by government of the sacredness of contracts made.
9. Freedom of investments and private enterprise.
10. Encouragement of invention and lesser cost to perfect same.
11. Protection of the thrifty from confiscation of their savings by taxation and otherwise.
12. Avoidance of governmental deficits, in bad years as well as good years.
13. Prevention of either inflation or deflation of the volume of medium.
14. Governmental adjustment of the net total volume of spending power to prevent any considerable changes in the general price level.
15. Withdrawal of government from the ownership, administration or control of the operations of construction projects, farms, factories, banks, insurance funds and transportation facilities.
16. Prevention by government of oppression of the public by either capitalistic or labor monopolies.
17. Substitution of provisions for flexible wage rates instead of fixed wage rates in contracts between employers and employees.

The author firmly believes all of these keys are necessary if we wish our country or nation to progress smoothly and steadily; he points out vividly the hazards confronting those who attempt to detour any of the gates.

We feel sure not nearly all will agree upon all the above-mentioned keys and the outlined King program no doubt will likely bring on a considerable amount of argument. But a casual study really convinces the writer that the program as outlined is sound and can be made workable.

We doubt very much that a more complete investigation would change our opinion, and while Dr. King speaks so frankly that there are many who will no doubt disagree with him, the logic he employs in support of his opinions is such that to our mind, it will be very difficult to refute in any way just what he says.

County to Have Separate Unit In Chest Campaign

Wm. Seeburger to Head Newly Created Zone "D" For Red Feather Drive

For the first time, Delaware County will conduct its drive for the Community Chest's Red Feather Campaign as a separate unit, Zone "D," it was announced last week by Albert W. Whittlesey, chairman of the district's department.

Named to head the newly created zone for the 1949 campaign was William G. Seeburger, of Highland Park, who has been active in Red Feather campaigns since 1941. He is associated with the Penn Mutual Life Insurance Company. Last year, he and his wife, as co-chairmen of the Upper Darby Division, received the Evening Bulletin Award, given to the Division with the highest over-subscription of quota assigned.

The new zone wil be subdivided into Eastern and Western Delaware County with seven divisions. Hovertown, Upper Darby, Madison, Chester Pike, Central Delaware County, Newtown Square and Western Delaware County. The divisions will be further divided into 52 districts.

The new zone was created upon recommendation of former county campaign leaders, including Alfred H. Williams, general chairman for the 1947 campaign; Judge Harold L. Ervin, associate judge for Delaware County and recently reelected president of the Family Service of Delaware County, who last year headed the drive as chairman of Zone "A"; and Thomas B. McCabe, president of the Scott Paper Company, and general chairman of the 1948 Chester Community Fund.

SPORTS CENE

By BOB JOHNSTON

According to Arthur R. Cooney, serving his second term as president, the Suburban Softball League is merely "a home for aged athletes."

The performances of softballers in this eight-team circuit, however, wouldn't seem to bear this out, for these oldsters and some not so old take the game so seriously that they pay to play. Entirely self supporting, the league pays its own umpires and other expenses, with players footing the bills.

Walter D. Fixter served as first president when the league was organized in 1945. A championship trophy now bears his name, with Penfield Downs first laying claim to the cup, followed by Merion Generals and Penfield Indians.

Cooney, general agent for the Illinois Central Railroad, who lives in Narberth, has assisting him insurance man C. H. MacDonald, vice president from Penfield Downs; Joseph Ryan, powder company sales manager, secretary and Penn Wynne native, and treasurer Bob Cheyney, Philadelphia realtor and Ardmore resident.

Members of the eight-team league and their respective managers include Penfield Indians, Dick Fox; Merion Generals, Art Cooney; Brookline, Fred Marschhausen; Penn Wynne, Joe Ryan; Westgate Hills, Ted Hicking; Ardmore, Bill Taylor; Merion Legionnaires, Ralph Moss, and Penfield Downs, Paul Stofko.

Every team, with the exception of Merion Legionnaires, is a charter member. The Legionnaires recently replaced Ardwood when the latter proved unable to field a team.

Currently, Penfield Indians and Penn Wynne are waging a bitter battle for the league lead, with both recording 12 triumphs in 17 tries.

A league roster reads like an athletic "who's who and was" for the names of former sports stars are included on almost every team. Typical is Penn Wynne, which boasts Henry (Chinkie) Haines, ex-Penn State All-American and Yankee outfielder, and Catcher Joe Orsi, who also earned All-American honors at Colgate and now scouts for Philadelphia Eagles.

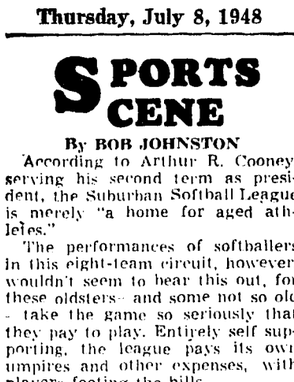

The Eagles' fullback, Jack Hinkle, pitches for Merion Legionnaires. The league's leading hurler is Byron Saam, major league sportscaster, who has won 18 and lost four over the past two seasons. Lending support to Saam is Jack O'Connor, another General pitcher and former Penn football and baseball star.

Andy Barton, ex-Penn baseball captain, currently is the loop's No 1 hitter. He also patrols the outfield for the Generals. Harry Frazier, ex-three letter athlete at Penn State, catches for Ardmore. Tanny Ralston, erstwhile Main Line Leaguer and Drexel Tech athlete, plays second base for the Generals.

Westgate Hills has Bob Wetter, another ex-Drexel ace, at shortstop, while two ex-Penn grid greats Bob Dougherty and Paul Stofko, play for Brookline and Penfield Downs, respectively. Dougherty, one of Penn's greatest all-around athletes, who later coached the Quaker courtman, fi'ls an outfield post. Another member of the Dougherty clan, Don, ex-West Catholic High athlete, is a Brookline catcher.

And big Norm Butz, one of this district's leading scorers while playing basketball for St. Joseph's College several seasons ago, is second only to Barton in the race for batting honors.

Y. M. C. A. NOTES

Mt. Pleasant Playground activities opened this week on the Wayne school playgrounds with an enlarged program. The morning Play School will operate five mornings, Monday through Friday, for eight weeks, with Mrs. Lillian Holliday as director of activities, which will include handcrafts, music, dramatics, games, folk dancing, and story telling.

A new sandbox has been purchased by a local group of women. The nurse from the Neighborhood League will visit the play school every Monday, Wednesday and Friday morning to take care of any health problems and interest the boys and girls in good health. This program is for boys and girls from four to 11 years of age.

In case of rain this program will be held in the school building.

The evening program for teen-agers also started this week under the direction of Donald Young, of Philadelphia. This will be operated from 6 P. M. until dark. In case of rain the activities will be cancelled. Some of the activities will be badminton, volley ball, softball, quoits, other games and the editing of a newspaper.

The Mt. Pleasant Tri-Hi-Y club will continue its meeting and assist with some of the leadership on the playground. The club met Thursday evening at the home of Alice Byrd.

Regular activities of Teen-Agers will be held at the Main Line Y, Saturday evening, which will include bowling, roller skating, games and dancing.

A group of teen-agers from the Hawks Hi-Y, the Bobbie Sox Tri-Hi-Y and the Bomisi Junior Tri-Hi-Y clubs of the Main Line Y are holding a dance at Ashbridge House in Rosemont Friday evening. Among those attending are Jeanette Epps, Ann Ciotti, Doris Travaglini, Ernestine Travaglini, Frances' Stuart, Blanche Newborg, Dolly Stuart, Estelle Thomas, Charlotte Costello, Patty Stuart, Helen Migeot, Alice Conway, Rosemary Lynne, Bob Stevens, Francis Blank, Eugene Hughes, Jack Kelly, Gene Kelly, Bill Long, Ed Horn, Dave Boyd, James Steckbeck, Paul Mariano, Art Daly, Al Kuntz, and Gordon Emptee. Leaders William Seery, John Albany and Mrs. J. E. Bertles will also attend.

✦ ✦ ✦

The Bomisi Girls' Club held a picnic and doggie roast at Gladwyn Park Thursday evening. Members of these include Lee DiMattia, Patty Stuart, Sue Bradley, Mary Hopkins, Dolly Sanloff, Jean McGoldrick, Eve DiMattia and Nancy Till.

Manoa, Media Still Tied for Lead in Main Line League Race; Narberth Team 1½ Games in Third Place

When the firing had ceased and the smoke had cleared after last week-end's holiday season, Manoa and Media were still tied for the Main Line League lead with Narberth a game and a half away in third place.

Manoa clubbed Narberth, Clifton Heights and Ardmore while the Main Liners were racking their vengeance upon Wayne, Ardmore and Clifton Heights.

Wayne, by winning over Berwyn and Glenolden, climbed into fourth place while Ardmore's young Lions remained in fifth place.

This week-end, originally slated as an open two-day hiatus, has been partially filled with postponed games. Saturday, Wayne plays at Clifton Heights and Narberth meets Ardmore at Ardmore.

Sunday's outstanding game is another match between Manoa and Narberth on the Boroughites' field. Last Saturday, the co-leaders rocked ace lefty Jack Creany for 15 hits and a 9-1 win over the Davismen, so the Blue will be out to stop Ted Westervelt's crew. Glenolden plays at Clifton Heights and Ardmore journeys to Berwyn in other Sunday games. Media, idle over this week-end, may slip out of first place should Manoa beat Narberth.

Newcomer Tommy Grace's six-hit pitching was good enough to stop Narberth while Nick DeFranks downed Clifton, 6-5, and Millard Robinson had an easy time gaining win No. 5, 16-0, over Ardmore.

Eggie Lofland, Bill Taylor and Don Caniglia were the winners in Media's three victories. Wayne fell by a 10-3 score; Clifton was trounced, 10-1, and, although outhitting the winners, Ardmore was vanquished, 10-5.

After losing to Media, Wayne rallied to trim hapless Berwyn, 6-3, and stop Glenolden, 6-1. Joe Donahue and Bill West were the winning pitchers, with fastballer West holding the Stars to 8 hits.

Clifton Heights stopped Glenolden, 9-3, as Shea won his third game the same number that the heighters have won all year. Ardmore's only win of the week-end came when Joe Skillman bested ex-Athletic farmhand Harry Blair as the Lions topped Berwyn, 4-3.

Manoa has added Bernie Rosenfeld, second baseman, recently released by Clifton Heights. Rosenfeld, a graduate of Drexel, was named all-league second baseman in 1946 and 1947 while playing for Drexel Hill.

Ardmore announced the release of Ray Dessert, righthanded pitcher and brother of Harry Dessert, former Wayne ace. At the same time, Bill Henry, who played for the Lions two years ago, was added to the Ardmore list.

Joe DeFazio, pint-sized outfielder who played some fine ball for Ardmore during the past few years, has been signed by Wayne. Manager Mickey Gavin also released outfielder Frank McCann, and pitchers Bob Behney and Johnny Norris.

Bob Poletti, Manoa's slugging catcher-outfielder, leads Main Line League hitters with a rousing .577 average. Poletti has swatted four home runs and has batted in 15 runs, one less than teammate Gil Gekoski. Menny Menendez, another Manoa star, rinks second with .421, while Gekoski is third, hitting an even .400.
